

SHEEHAN IN A ROW.

He Tried to Expedite Voting in the Thirteenth District.

Wanted Voters to Have the Option of Refusing Amendment Ballots.

"Wicked" Gibbs, Beckman, Jerolomon and Larocque Oppose Him.

A lively row occurred in the Twenty-third Election District of the Thirteenth Assembly District about 10 o'clock this morning. This is one of the largest election precincts in the district, the registration being 335, and Leader John G. Sheehan found there was some opposition to all the Tammany votes would not be.

He ordered his captain in this district, James McShane, to facilitate matters by insisting that voters need not take the Constitutional Amendment ballots unless they wanted to.

In this way it was hoped that the Tammany vote could be run through more expeditiously, for this district is one of the most important strongholds of the Wigwam.

The poll clerks and the Republican election inspectors objected to the proposition, and insisted that each voter should take all the ballots and return them properly folded.

Mr. McShane summoned Mr. Sheehan to his aid, and just at the same time Frederick E. Gibbs, the "Wicked One," and Col. Theodore Hamilton came along, while Candidates Henry R. Beckman and John Jerolomon happened in at the same time with Joseph Larocque, Chairman of the Committee of Seventy.

For ten minutes there was as fine a display of election oratory as one would care to listen to. Meanwhile all voting had been stopped.

The "Wicked" Gibbs got out his pocket manual and read the law to the inspectors and likewise the riot act. He said every voter should be compelled to take all the ballots into the booth and return them properly folded, or the vote would be thrown out.

Mr. Sheehan and the Tammany captain stood up for what they regarded as the rights of the voters and insisted that he could take as many or as few ballots into the booth as he liked, so long as he voted something, and that meant the Tammany ticket.

The Regard Club workers were out in force, and they backed up the Police Commissioner, and it looked for a while as if the 23 voters and the election district who still remained unheard from would be shut out entirely.

The inspectors of issue was not decided, however, and every man who voted took a many ballots and he was compelled to answer.

He would then go into the booth with his Tammany paper and be out again inside of two minutes.

Receivers for an Association.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—Judge Cox, of the District Court, today appointed Andrew Lipscomb and Thomas H. Field, of this city, as receivers for the Washington National Life Insurance Co. of New York.

Very Important Sale

RIBBONS.

Throughout the week until all are sold.

NOTE.—We have made some big purchases, but this is the first time in the history of our house that we have closed out the entire stock of a large Silk Ribbon manufacturer. It's a great stock—enough to supply all New York, Brooklyn, Jersey City, Staten Island and away up the State—and still have ribbons left. They are the finest qualities, and all Pure Silk, in

The Following Colors:

Three shades of Pink.
Three shades of Lavender.
Three shades of Green.
Three shades of Brown.
Two shades of Scarlet and Cardinal.
Three shades of Orange and various shades of Orange, Lemon, Navy Blue, White and Cream—full assortment—but no Blacks—

At These Prices:

No. 5—1 inch wide, at..... 4c
No. 7—1 1/2 inches wide, at..... 6c
No. 9—2 inches wide, at..... 7c
No. 12—2 1/2 inches wide, at..... 9c
No. 16—3 1/2 inches wide, at..... 10c
No. 22—3 1/2 inches wide, at..... 12c

IN BLACK ONLY, we offer several lots of Double-Faced Satin Ribbon at the following prices:

No. 5—1 inch wide, at..... 5c
No. 7—1 1/2 inches wide, at..... 7c
No. 9—2 inches wide, at..... 9c
No. 12—2 1/2 inches wide, at..... 12c

NOTE ALSO.—That our Enlarged Ribbon Department is now arranged in our magnificent new fireproof building on 30th street, under a large skylight, especially constructed so that our customers can match even the most delicate shades without inconvenience, and with absolute exactness.

Twenty-five capable and experienced saleswomen will be in attendance.

CAPT. SLIGOW A PICKPOCKET?

Strass Says the Republican Robbed Him at the Polls.

John J. Sligow, a Republican captain at the polls, 260 William street, in the Second Assembly District, was arrested at noon today charged with picking the pockets of an elector whom he was trying to convert.

Policeman Buckley, who stood at the polls, was attracted by a great racket near by, and saw a man with a blue badge fleeing down William street pursued by a commonplace citizen, who was shouting "Stop thief!"

The policeman gave chase and overtook the blue badge, which was worn by Capt. Sligow. The pursuer said that he was Florence Stearns, employed in the City Court. He declared that as he approached the polls to vote, the captain had greeted him most warmly, trying to win his vote for the Republican ticket.

During this tête-à-tête Stearns declares that the captain snatched a 30 cent bill from his pocket.

Capt. Sligow was considerably incensed, and Justice Ryan put off the hearing until the captain could become sober.

Special Detective Thompson, of the West Forty-seventh street squad, arraigned a Republican Inspector of Election, of the Fifth Election District, in New York City Court this morning, on a charge with being implicated in the theft of three gold watches and a chain from James O'Hare, an 42 West Fifty-third street. The accused is Stanford B. Craig, twenty-eight years old, living at the same address.

O'Hare yesterday appeared in court against a disreputable looking woman who said she was Lizzie O'Hare, and she was committed for trial in Elbow hall on the charge of having stolen the property.

O'Hare said he had been living with the woman for the past eighteen months. He is a foreman in the Street-Cleaning department. While he was at Elbow hall, Saturday his trunk was broken open and the jewelry stolen. Thompson found it cunning and learned that it was the woman who had pledged the jewelry.

After her arrest she confessed her guilt and said that Craig was her accomplice. She said that she had been at his home last night. Justice McMahon held him for further examination.

Really Hurt by a Cable Car.

Thomas E. Vaughn, forty-five years old, of 1353 Second avenue, was knocked down by a Third Avenue cable car at 8 o'clock this morning at Fifty-sixth street. He was severely hurt about the head and body and was removed to Flower Hospital.

Scrofula in the Neck.

"I had a bunch on the side of my neck as large as a hen's egg. I was advised to have it cut out, but would not consent. A friend suggested that I take Hood's Sarsaparilla, which I am glad to say that I did, and soon the bunch entirely disappeared. I can truly praise Hood's Sarsaparilla, for I know it is an excellent medicine."

Wm. E. Hildreth, Red Cloud, Neb.

Entirely Disappeared.

Hood's Sarsaparilla Cures

Hood's Pills are the best after-dinner pills, constipation, prevent constipation.

WOMEN AS WATCHERS

Mrs. E. B. Grannis Shows that They're a Big Success.

Appeared To, She Quietly Settles a Wordy Controversy.

Republicans Not Thrown Out of 68 Oliver Street This Year.

With a Republican watcher's certificate signed by Chairman Brookfield, a look of determination, a lunch basket and a copy of the election laws, Mrs. E. B. Grannis, the courageous woman reformer, arrived at the polling place at 65 Oliver street, at 8 o'clock this morning.

The other Republican watcher at the Oliver street polling place was Maurice Kennedy, who said that he was one of the men who was thrown out a year ago. He said he did not expect any more of this kind of thing, and that he thought the election would be conducted fairly.

Grannis was making herself famous two other women were acting as unofficial watchers at the polling place of the Twenty-first Election District, 41 Oliver street.

"I have been treated with the greatest consideration," she said to an "Evening World" reporter. "I had been told that two Republican watchers were being thrown out of the polling place. But I am getting along finely and the election in this district is going to be honest," she exclaimed, bringing down a gloved hand on the ballot-box to emphasize the remark.

"But there is one thing I want to find out about," continued Mrs. Grannis, lowering her voice to a nearly a whisper so she could not be heard by others.

"I want to know if men so under the influence of liquor they don't know what they are doing have the right to vote. There have been several such here this morning, and as none of the men made objection I said nothing."

"And also," went on the fair watcher, "I want to know if it's just the proper thing for election officers to be under the influence of liquor. I have noticed, but you can see and smell for yourselves that."

But just then other watchers crowded

Other Women Watching the Polls at 41 Oliver Street.

This is where the citizens of the Twenty-second Election District of the Second Assembly District vote, and when Mrs. Grannis arrived she announced that notwithstanding the fact that the Republican watchers there a year ago were thrown out, she was going to remain at the post all day and until the votes were counted to-night.

Her arrival was expected, and when she stepped from the cab to the polling place a rousing cheer of welcome was given by a score of voters waiting for the polls to open. She did not wear the reform dress she advocates, but appeared in a conventional costume, including a new bonnet that must have created envy among the caste-like women who glanced in through the window.

Mrs. Grannis thoroughly understood her duties before she arrived and when the polls opened at 6 o'clock she went behind a box to the right of the entrance in which unvoted ballots were to be placed. She held in her hand a copy of the registry list of the district, and as each voter's name was announced she checked off his name.

up to the reporter and Mrs. Grannis discreetly refrained from saying anything more about the subject.

A few minutes later, longshoremen, with a bunch of ballots in their hands and a look of perplexity, wanted to know just how to fold the tickets.

An election inspector started in to tell him, but a prohibition watcher declared he had no right to do so, and in a moment there was an argument in which every one in the room, except Mrs. Grannis and the reformer, took part. Republican and Democratic watchers waved their arms wildly, the elector officers declared they would stand up for their rights and the prohibitionist made as much noise as if his ticket had some show of winning.

Mrs. Grannis simply looked on and smiled. Finally she was asked her opinion, and when she said she didn't see any reason for such a fuss the prohibitionist, satisfied and the longshoreman was given the information he had asked.

"Women as watchers are a success, and I am glad to be first in the field," the other Republican watcher at the Oliver street polling place was Maurice Kennedy, who said that he was one of the men who was thrown out a year ago. He said he did not expect any more of this kind of thing, and that he thought the election would be conducted fairly.

Grannis was making herself famous two other women were acting as unofficial watchers at the polling place of the Twenty-first Election District, 41 Oliver street.

"I have been treated with the greatest consideration," she said to an "Evening World" reporter. "I had been told that two Republican watchers were being thrown out of the polling place. But I am getting along finely and the election in this district is going to be honest," she exclaimed, bringing down a gloved hand on the ballot-box to emphasize the remark.

"But there is one thing I want to find out about," continued Mrs. Grannis, lowering her voice to a nearly a whisper so she could not be heard by others.

"I want to know if men so under the influence of liquor they don't know what they are doing have the right to vote. There have been several such here this morning, and as none of the men made objection I said nothing."

"And also," went on the fair watcher, "I want to know if it's just the proper thing for election officers to be under the influence of liquor. I have noticed, but you can see and smell for yourselves that."

But just then other watchers crowded

Other Women Watching the Polls at 41 Oliver Street.

This is where the citizens of the Twenty-second Election District of the Second Assembly District vote, and when Mrs. Grannis arrived she announced that notwithstanding the fact that the Republican watchers there a year ago were thrown out, she was going to remain at the post all day and until the votes were counted to-night.

Her arrival was expected, and when she stepped from the cab to the polling place a rousing cheer of welcome was given by a score of voters waiting for the polls to open. She did not wear the reform dress she advocates, but appeared in a conventional costume, including a new bonnet that must have created envy among the caste-like women who glanced in through the window.

Mrs. Grannis thoroughly understood her duties before she arrived and when the polls opened at 6 o'clock she went

Other Women Watching the Polls at 41 Oliver Street.

This is where the citizens of the Twenty-second Election District of the Second Assembly District vote, and when Mrs. Grannis arrived she announced that notwithstanding the fact that the Republican watchers there a year ago were thrown out, she was going to remain at the post all day and until the votes were counted to-night.

Her arrival was expected, and when she stepped from the cab to the polling place a rousing cheer of welcome was given by a score of voters waiting for the polls to open. She did not wear the reform dress she advocates, but appeared in a conventional costume, including a new bonnet that must have created envy among the caste-like women who glanced in through the window.

Mrs. Grannis thoroughly understood her duties before she arrived and when the polls opened at 6 o'clock she went

Other Women Watching the Polls at 41 Oliver Street.

This is where the citizens of the Twenty-second Election District of the Second Assembly District vote, and when Mrs. Grannis arrived she announced that notwithstanding the fact that the Republican watchers there a year ago were thrown out, she was going to remain at the post all day and until the votes were counted to-night.

Her arrival was expected, and when she stepped from the cab to the polling place a rousing cheer of welcome was given by a score of voters waiting for the polls to open. She did not wear the reform dress she advocates, but appeared in a conventional costume, including a new bonnet that must have created envy among the caste-like women who glanced in through the window.

Mrs. Grannis thoroughly understood her duties before she arrived and when the polls opened at 6 o'clock she went

Other Women Watching the Polls at 41 Oliver Street.

This is where the citizens of the Twenty-second Election District of the Second Assembly District vote, and when Mrs. Grannis arrived she announced that notwithstanding the fact that the Republican watchers there a year ago were thrown out, she was going to remain at the post all day and until the votes were counted to-night.

Her arrival was expected, and when she stepped from the cab to the polling place a rousing cheer of welcome was given by a score of voters waiting for the polls to open. She did not wear the reform dress she advocates, but appeared in a conventional costume, including a new bonnet that must have created envy among the caste-like women who glanced in through the window.

Mrs. Grannis thoroughly understood her duties before she arrived and when the polls opened at 6 o'clock she went

Other Women Watching the Polls at 41 Oliver Street.

This is where the citizens of the Twenty-second Election District of the Second Assembly District vote, and when Mrs. Grannis arrived she announced that notwithstanding the fact that the Republican watchers there a year ago were thrown out, she was going to remain at the post all day and until the votes were counted to-night.

Her arrival was expected, and when she stepped from the cab to the polling place a rousing cheer of welcome was given by a score of voters waiting for the polls to open. She did not wear the reform dress she advocates, but appeared in a conventional costume, including a new bonnet that must have created envy among the caste-like women who glanced in through the window.

Mrs. Grannis thoroughly understood her duties before she arrived and when the polls opened at 6 o'clock she went

Other Women Watching the Polls at 41 Oliver Street.

This is where the citizens of the Twenty-second Election District of the Second Assembly District vote, and when Mrs. Grannis arrived she announced that notwithstanding the fact that the Republican watchers there a year ago were thrown out, she was going to remain at the post all day and until the votes were counted to-night.

Her arrival was expected, and when she stepped from the cab to the polling place a rousing cheer of welcome was given by a score of voters waiting for the polls to open. She did not wear the reform dress she advocates, but appeared in a conventional costume, including a new bonnet that must have created envy among the caste-like women who glanced in through the window.

Mrs. Grannis thoroughly understood her duties before she arrived and when the polls opened at 6 o'clock she went up to the reporter and Mrs. Grannis discreetly refrained from saying anything more about the subject.

A few minutes later, longshoremen, with a bunch of ballots in their hands and a look of perplexity, wanted to know just how to fold the tickets.

An election inspector started in to tell him, but a prohibition watcher declared he had no right to do so, and in a moment there was an argument in which every one in the room, except Mrs. Grannis and the reformer, took part. Republican and Democratic watchers waved their arms wildly, the elector officers declared they would stand up for their rights and the prohibitionist made as much noise as if his ticket had some show of winning.

Mrs. Grannis simply looked on and smiled. Finally she was asked her opinion, and when she said she didn't see any reason for such a fuss the prohibitionist, satisfied and the longshoreman was given the information he had asked.

"Women as watchers are a success, and I am glad to be first in the field," the other Republican watcher at the Oliver street polling place was Maurice Kennedy, who said that he was one of the men who was thrown out a year ago. He said he did not expect any more of this kind of thing, and that he thought the election would be conducted fairly.

Grannis was making herself famous two other women were acting as unofficial watchers at the polling place of the Twenty-first Election District, 41 Oliver street.

"I have been treated with the greatest consideration," she said to an "Evening World" reporter. "I had been told that two Republican watchers were being thrown out of the polling place. But I am getting along finely and the election in this district is going to be honest," she exclaimed, bringing down a gloved hand on the ballot-box to emphasize the remark.

"But there is one thing I want to find out about," continued Mrs. Grannis, lowering her voice to a nearly a whisper so she could not be heard by others.

"I want to know if men so under the influence of liquor they don't know what they are doing have the right to vote. There have been several such here this morning, and as none of the men made objection I said nothing."

"And also," went on the fair watcher, "I want to know if it's just the proper thing for election officers to be under the influence of liquor. I have noticed, but you can see and smell for yourselves that."

But just then other watchers crowded

Other Women Watching the Polls at 41 Oliver Street.

This is where the citizens of the Twenty-second Election District of the Second Assembly District vote, and when Mrs. Grannis arrived she announced that notwithstanding the fact that the Republican watchers there a year ago were thrown out, she was going to remain at the post all day and until the votes were counted to-night.

Her arrival was expected, and when she stepped from the cab to the polling place a rousing cheer of welcome was given by a score of voters waiting for the polls to open. She did not wear the reform dress she advocates, but appeared in a conventional costume, including a new bonnet that must have created envy among the caste-like women who glanced in through the window.

Mrs. Grannis thoroughly understood her duties before she arrived and when the polls opened at 6 o'clock she went

Other Women Watching the Polls at 41 Oliver Street.

This is where the citizens of the Twenty-second Election District of the Second Assembly District vote, and when Mrs. Grannis arrived she announced that notwithstanding the fact that the Republican watchers there a year ago were thrown out, she was going to remain at the post all day and until the votes were counted to-night.

Her arrival was expected, and when she stepped from the cab to the polling place a rousing cheer of welcome was given by a score of voters waiting for the polls to open. She did not wear the reform dress she advocates, but appeared in a conventional costume, including a new bonnet that must have created envy among the caste-like women who glanced in through the window.

Mrs. Grannis thoroughly understood her duties before she arrived and when the polls opened at 6 o'clock she went

Other Women Watching the Polls at 41 Oliver Street.

This is where the citizens of the Twenty-second Election District of the Second Assembly District vote, and when Mrs. Grannis arrived she announced that notwithstanding the fact that the Republican watchers there a year ago were thrown out, she was going to remain at the post all day and until the votes were counted to-night.

Her arrival was expected, and when she stepped from the cab to the polling place a rousing cheer of welcome was given by a score of voters waiting for the polls to open. She did not wear the reform dress she advocates, but appeared in a conventional costume, including a new bonnet that must have created envy among the caste-like women who glanced in through the window.

Mrs. Grannis thoroughly understood her duties before she arrived and when the polls opened at 6 o'clock she went

Other Women Watching the Polls at 41 Oliver Street.

This is where the citizens of the Twenty-second Election District of the Second Assembly District vote, and when Mrs. Grannis arrived she announced that notwithstanding the fact that the Republican watchers there a year ago were thrown out, she was going to remain at the post all day and until the votes were counted to-night.

Her arrival was expected, and when she stepped from the cab to the polling place a rousing cheer of welcome was given by a score of voters waiting for the polls to open. She did not wear the reform dress she advocates, but appeared in a conventional costume, including a new bonnet that must have created envy among the caste-like women who glanced in through the window.

Mrs. Grannis thoroughly understood her duties before she arrived and when the polls opened at 6 o'clock she went

Other Women Watching the Polls at 41 Oliver Street.

This is where the citizens of the Twenty-second Election District of the Second Assembly District vote, and when Mrs. Grannis arrived she announced that notwithstanding the fact that the Republican watchers there a year ago were thrown out, she was going to remain at the post all day and until the votes were counted to-night.

Her arrival was expected, and when she stepped from the cab to the polling place a rousing cheer of welcome was given by a score of voters waiting for the polls to open. She did not wear the reform dress she advocates, but appeared in a conventional costume, including a new bonnet that must have created envy among the caste-like women who glanced in through the window.

Mrs. Grannis thoroughly understood her duties before she arrived and when the polls opened at 6 o'clock she went

Other Women Watching the Polls at 41 Oliver Street.

This is where the citizens of the Twenty-second Election District of the Second Assembly District vote, and when Mrs. Grannis arrived she announced that notwithstanding the fact that the Republican watchers there a year ago were thrown out, she was going to remain at the post all day and until the votes were counted to-night.

Her arrival was expected, and when she stepped from the cab to the polling place a rousing cheer of welcome was given by a score of voters waiting for the polls to open. She did not wear the reform dress she advocates, but appeared in a conventional costume, including a new bonnet that must have created envy among the caste-like women who glanced in through the window.

Mrs. Grannis thoroughly understood her duties before she arrived and when the polls opened at 6 o'clock she went

Other Women Watching the Polls at 41 Oliver Street.

STUDENTS DEBARRED.

Justice Barrett Decides Against the Theologians.

Forty-nine of Them Stricken from the Registry Lists.

Tutors, However, May Acquire a Legal Residence.

About one hundred students of the General Theological Seminary of the Episcopal Church, in Chelsea Square, marched in double file into the County Court-House at 9 o'clock this morning.

Forty-nine of the students had been served last night with orders issued by Justice Barrett, of the Supreme Court, requiring them to show cause why their names should not be stricken from the registry lists of the Second Election District of the Thirteenth Assembly District.

The orders to show cause, which were secured upon the affidavits of Peter J. Garvey, of 42 West Twentieth street, the thirty-seven from the seminary voted without question and the student number twenty are among those included in the forty-nine ordered to show cause to-day.

Justice Barrett arrived at 10 o'clock and the argument began. Ex-Judge Aronson and Lawyer Canfield argued in behalf of the students. It was contended that they occupied a different position from the students of most educational institutions, inasmuch as they paid their board and tuition from their own funds, and many of them remained all the year round.

Counsel for Garvey, who brought the action, contended that under the Constitution no one could gain or lose a residence by entering a seminary of learning.

So far as the cases of Tutor Shepard and Assistant Prof. West were concerned, Justice Barrett said there was no question that they had a right to vote, and in their cases he refused the mandamus.

As to the others, Justice Barrett said that under the Constitution they had not gained a legal residence at the Seminary. He refused, however, to grant the mandamus ordering the names stricken from the lists, because, he said, action should have been taken sooner.

He said the students could vote if they chose to swear in their ballots, and take their chances on punishment if it developed that they had no right.

Ex-Judge Aronson said the students did not wish to be placed in that position, and asked for a decision in one specific case by which the others could be governed.

In that case Justice Barrett expressed the opinion that the student had no right to vote, and ex-Judge Aronson said that the other students would refrain from voting.

At Justice Barrett's suggestion, ex-Judge Aronson is to prepare the cases of three of the students for appeal to the Court of Appeals for future government of such cases.

Daniel Lord Critically Ill.

LAWRENCE L. L., Nov. 6.—Daniel Lord, of the firm of Lord, Day & Lord, of 120 Broadway, New York, is quite ill at his summer home here, and the rumor is that he is quite ill.

He is a brother-in-law of Mr. Hicks-Lord.

PROF. MUNYON'S SECRETS.

His Private Records Published.

Public Spirited Citizens Investigate the Famous Reformer's Methods.

Mr. Henry Whittemore, 487 Third street, Brooklyn, late genealogical editor National Cyclopaedia of American Biography, says: "I must add my testimony to the efficacy of Munyon's Remedies. After being confined to the house for two days with a severe attack of catarrh, I procured a vial of Munyon's Rheumatism Cure and took one dose at night, and the next morning I was able to attend to business and within three days could walk up and downstairs without difficulty. I shall take pleasure in recommending to my friends who are thus afflicted."

Munyon's Vitalizer a Great Tonic.

Mrs. Williams, 200 Nostrand avenue, Brooklyn, says: "I have derived wonderful benefit from Munyon's Vitalizer. I began taking it when I was so weak and debilitated as to be scarcely able to walk. It acted as a marvelous tonic and built up my strength immediately."

Mr. Thomas Malt, 269 West Fifty-second street, New York City: "Munyon's Vitalizer is a great tonic. I tried it when recovering from a long spell of illness and found that it imparted new strength and vigor at once."

A. T. Jacobs, Bayonne, N. J.: "Professor Munyon's Vitalizer is a most remarkable invigorator. It has done wonders in building up my health. I am now strong and healthy. Munyon's Remedies sold by all druggists."

Free Medical Advice.

If you are in doubt what remedy to take, call on Professor Munyon for a thorough medical examination. Every case receives personal attention. Absolutely no charge for examination or advice. Open all day, Sundays, 3 to